Personnel Board To Ask "Cost Of Living" Hike

This paper has learned that the Arlington Personnel Board is recommending a cost of living increase of $178 or four per cent, whichever is greater, for the salaried employees of the Town of Arlington, and $3.40 or four per cent for the weekly employees, effective April, 1958.

• A Town Employees group previously had asked a $500 "across the board" raise in mid-November.

According to the Personnel Board, thorough analysis and study of all the contributing factors affecting pay of Town Employees reveals that:

"Annual average cost of living has risen from 116.7 to 121.5 from 1956 to 1957, according to the Massachusetts State Index, an increase of 4.8 points, or 4.1 per cent. Historically Arlington has recognized increased cost of living as a basis for increasing comparably the pay of Town Employees.

"The School Committee plans to increase pay of clerical employees $312 annually in 1958. This increase is in addition to the four per cent granted these employees in 1957. The amount of $312 is approximately a nine per cent increase if applied to Senior Clerks working for the Town other than under the jurisdiction of the School Committee.

Poll Taken

"A poll of Town Executives of nearby towns indicates plans on their part to recommend increases for their Town Employees for from 4 to 8 per cent. Arlington has always taken into consideration competition for employees as a factor in the pay plan, with a view toward being neither the highest nor the lowest. The 4 per cent recommended should maintain Arlington's status in the middle as to employees pay, and also maintain a fair standard of living for Town Employees.

"While town jobs cannot be compared directly to comparable positions in industry because of additional security and fringe benefits granted Town Employees, the gap is rapidly closing, and annual increases to industrial employees must be considered. All indicators point to increased industrial pay in 1958—many of them automatic from cost of living 'escalator' clauses in union agreements or Brook near Brattle street, Tuesday morning, picked up young Henry Jenkins, age 6, and made his way ashore.

The youngster, who lives at 38 Gorham street, Arlington, was stranded in the middle of the brook after a rock jumping adventure.

Young Jenkins, a first grade student at the Cutter school had been returning home from classes when he apparently slipped as he was attempting to cross the brook via the stone route.

Officer Alexie, called by neighbors, made his way to the scene and lifted the wet-but otherwise unharmed boy to safety.

Fidelity House Boys To Visit "Tuff Town"

The citizens of mythical "Tuff Town" have invited all 6 to 13 year old boys, members of Fidelity House, to visit their little, but exciting Town January 20, from 7 to 8:50 p.m.

The boys will report at Fidelity House Monday evening and join in the Tuff Town activities, which will be of an unusual nature.

The Tuff Town—city council—members are Herb Lambert, chairman of the Friends of Fidelity House youth activities program, John Mahoney, Paul Wright, Bill Wright, John Green, Dan Healy, J. Francis Bourgeois, John Stanton, Wm. F. Holian, Ralph Leo LaValle, Ray Coyle, Peter Toland, Jim Boyle, Frank McManama, and Herb Weber.

The High school Building Committee will meet Thursday, at 8 p.m.

Town's "Men In Green" Much In Evidence, Today

Arlington's "Men in Green," the Civil Defense Auxiliary Police are much in evidence these days.

A new program of training initiated last Fall by Chief Albert E. Ryan and Town Manager Edward C. Monahan has given many hours of practical training to the auxiliary police.

With the uniforming of the men in their natty forest green uniforms, Lieutenant Philip A. Sweeney, Civil Defense Director and Police Coordinator, welcomed the new program of police work under actual conditions.

The police training is many sided. Several nights each week the regular police train auxiliaries on walking routes, in the scout cars, and on traffic duty. Each regular officer acts as a teacher for his auxiliary, in this manner the learning comes faster and more accurately.

On Sunday mornings the traffic in front of many of the churches in the town is covered by the auxiliary police. This gives the men in green a chance to put into practice their traffic skills, while performing a service to the churchgoers.

The paper work and supervision of details is performed by the Auxiliary division captains and their lieutenants. They have much praise for the men of the regular department both officers and administration for the good training and courtesy received by the auxiliaries.

The citizens of Arlington should bear in mind that all services performed by Civil Defense personnel, whether in police work, fire fighting, or first aid is entirely voluntary and these men are never paid for their work.

Next Friday night when you pass a traffic post, or next Sunday morning on your way to church, when you pass the "Men in Green" Arlington's Auxiliary Police, give him a wave or a smile. He is on the job learning to do a voluntary service for his community.

Miett - O'Connell

Miss Kathleen Mary O'Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. O'Connell of 31 Radcliffe rd., Arlington, recently became the bride of Mr. Joseph Lawrence Miett at a 9 o'clock nuptial mass in St. Agnes Church. After the wedding a reception was held at the Hotel Somerset.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Miss Mary O'Connell, sister of the bride, was the only attendant.

Mr. George A. Miett was best man for his brother and Mr. Philip LaBonte of Milton, and Mr. James P. Cleary, Jr., of Haverhill served as ushers.

The bride was graduated from Mt. St. Joseph Academy, Regis College and received her M. A. from Radcliffe Graduate School. The bridegroom was graduated from Boston College and Xavier Institute of Labor Relations, New York City.

categories outstanding on the same date was only $104,124.42 out of the $5,410,378.30 committed to him by the Board of Assessors during the year. This is a collection percentage over 98.1 — the highest in recent years.

In Coughlin's opinion, "this improvement — in the face of recent so-called 'tight money' trends — by Arlington citizens in their consistent record of prompt payment of taxes will enable the continued marketing of Town issues of municipal bonds and notes at a very favorable interest rate."

IN COLLISION

An Arlington youngster, 12 year old John Marena, 253 Pleasant st., was taken to Symmes hospital, last week to be treated for leg injuries reportedly sustained when the bike he was riding was in collision with a truck which according to police was operated by a Brighton resident. The accident took place at 935 Pleasant street.

Construction Of Appleton Place Opposed By Abutters

Any decision by the Arlington Board of Selectmen as to whether an article should be inserted in the Annual Warrant relative to the construction of Appleton place was tabled until the full Board is present.

An hearing was held Monday night at the meeting of the Board of Selectmen relative to construction of the street near the Junior High West. Some 25 persons were present, including the abutters.

The proposed road construction would run adjacent to the recently completed Girls' Playground area; it would provide for the parking of some 59 cars—20 on one side of the playground, 10 on another side, 22 on one section of the roadway, and 7 on another section.

The playground, recently completed, was constructed at a cost of just under $9,000. A total of $15,000 had been appropriated for construction at the 1955 Annual Town Meeting; the balance is returned to the general fund.

At the Annual Town Meeting of 1957 under Article 71, it was voted that a committee be formed to investigate, study, consider and make recommendations relative to the use of the area in the rear of the Junior High West for parking or passage of motor vehicles for relief of traffic congestion.

Named to serve on the committee were Bernard A. Forest of the School Committee, Franklin W. Hurd of the Board of Selectmen, Town Manager Edward C. Monahan, and Precinct 12 Town Meeting Members William F. McCl-lan, and Creelman McKenzie.

Parking Lot Cost $300

The land through which Appleton place runs is school property as are the sections of land on either side of the Girls' Playground. Construction of these parking areas must be approved by the School Committee.

The survey lines for the construction of Appleton place were set up two years ago by the Board of Survey, which has this right even though the land was the property of the school department. The estimated cost for constructing the two parking areas which could make space for some 20 and 10 cars respectively is $3,000.

Meanwhile, the total estimated cost of the street itself is $30,634.91. Broken down this figures as follows: cost of street work, $13,493.17; property damages, $6,682.35; storm drains, $3,725.95; water, $6,233.44.

According to a report brought out at the hearing Monday night, complaints of parking on adjacent streets had been received, especially at night when basketball games are being played at the West. It is expected that all games will continue to be played at the West until the new high school gymnasium is constructed.

Selectman Greeley stated at the conclusion of the hearing that the purpose of the hearing was to find some way of alleviating traffic conditions at Massachusetts avenue and Forest street.

The hearing concluded with all abutters in opposition to the construction.

YWCA Programs Open To Residents Of Arlington

A program of recreation and education, YW Wives, will be open to young wives and mothers of Arlington at the Boston YWCA with morning and evening groups beginning the latter part of January.

Information is available from Mrs. Richard A. Mitchell at the YWCA, Kenmore 6-7940.

The first meeting of the evening group will be at 8 p.m. Wed., January 22. A Tuesday morning group providing nursery care for small children will hold registration the following week on Jan. 28.

Two To Receive Eagle Awards

A scouting event, a bit out of the ordinary, will take place Monday evening, January 20, when Troop 85, of the Park Avenue Congregational Church, will join Troop 41 of the Brackett school, in presenting a scout from each troop with the Eagle Scout award at a court of honor ceremony.

The recipients of this high scouting honor will be Robert Hiatt of troop 85, and Donald Avery of troop 41.

MEMBER

Mrs. George Robbat, 26 Frost street, is a member of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts Ladies Committee which is carrying on an intensive drive for new Museum members, January 16 through February 2.

Oldsmobile Moves Ahead

Oldsmobile has moved ahead of all competitors in the medium price class in the sale of new cars since the 1958 models were introduced, according to Oldsmobile's general manager and vice president of General Motors, J. F. Wolfram.

"I believe this indicates," Wolfram said, "that Oldsmobile will make an even stronger impact on the medium price class market in 1958."

Louis Boucher of Colonial Motors of Arlington confirmed the fact that he has been informed by Mr. Wolfram that Oldsmobile is now the leader in the medium price class since the 1958 cars were unveiled.

Wolfram, prior to new model introductions, had predicted a good year for his company. In meetings with automotive writers, he had stated that Oldsmobile expected to take a larger share of medium price class.

"Oldsmobile sales since the introduction of the 1958 models in early November have been higher than during the same period a year ago," Wolfram added. "In the months of November and December, Oldsmobile retail sales increased by 10 per cent over the same period of 1956."

"Public reception of our brilliantly styled 1958 cars would indicate that our optimism is justified. It is apparent that more and more people like Oldsmobile's 'mobile look' and the continued engineering leadership for which Oldsmobile has become famous," Wolfram concluded.

"You Just Don't Realize How Much You're Saving Till You Add It All Up! I've Compared... I Know!"

That's exactly what the happy lady said . . . and she's so right! At First National you save and save, item by item. Finally comes the pleasant surprise — the thrifty total — the substantial savings . . . and we mean CASH savings, of course!

Within Town Limits

By Walt Moynihan

Chief of Police Albert Ryan has recommended that slow signs be installed at the Wachusett intersection in the Florence avenue area. A request by the Town of the state to approve the installation of a stop sign at Wachusett avenue has been disappointed.

Meanwhile, the Board of Selectmen has referred to the Town Manager for action alleged "deplorable traffic conditions" on Swan street and Swan place. Petitions and communications from those in the area which forms a block with Pleasant street and Massachusetts avenue ask that Swan street from Pleasant street to Swan place, now one way be made two ways, and that Swan place from Massachusetts avenue to Swan street be made one way.

Placed on the table at Monday's meeting of the Board of Selectmen were:

Article 13 on the Selectmen's Agenda — "Consideration for the insertion of an article in the Warrant for the 1958 Annual Town Meeting for the taking of the Russell Common by eminent domain."

Article 17 — "Relative to a communication from Fire Chief Egan protesting the installation of parking meter next to the hydrant in front of the Old Town Hall."

A communication from Superintendent of Public Works Francis O'Hara stated that the only solution to the problem would be the removal of this hydrant and a complete new installation made at the easterly end of the bus stop at Koford's Restaurant. According to Superintendent O'Hara, such an installation would cost approximately $400.

Tabled Monday night at the Board Meeting from the Agenda of the Public Works Department was the engineer's report of the estimated cost for proposed Chapter 718 projects for 1958.

A total of $115,000 was allotted to the Town by the State for Chapter 718 street construction. Some $63,100 of this amount has been utilized and another $10,292 earmarked for work at Pond lane, leaving a total of $41,607 available for 1958 projects.

Also tabled from the Board of Survey Agenda was an article relative to a communication concerning the request of a Bow street resident to establish new grades on Oakledge and Bow street. The resident is willing to give some land, free of charge, to the Town to round off the corner of the two streets.

Joseph E. Foley, Brooks avenue, was selected by the Board of Selectmen Monday night, to serve as a grand juror at the First Criminal Session at Cambridge, Feb. 3.

Approved at the Monday meeting of the Board of Selectmen was the recommendation of the Town Engineer to release to the Walter Reid Corporation a total of $41,373.57 retained under the terms of the Town's street construction program. The proposal to release the amount was made by the Town Manager.

Mrs. Bessie C. Corbett, 1003 Massachusetts avenue has made a tentative offer to the Town of Arlington to sell to the Town the land in the rear of her property in connection with which she will submit a written offer which could be the subject of a Warrant article.

This matter has come up in the past, but has been turned down at Town Meeting.

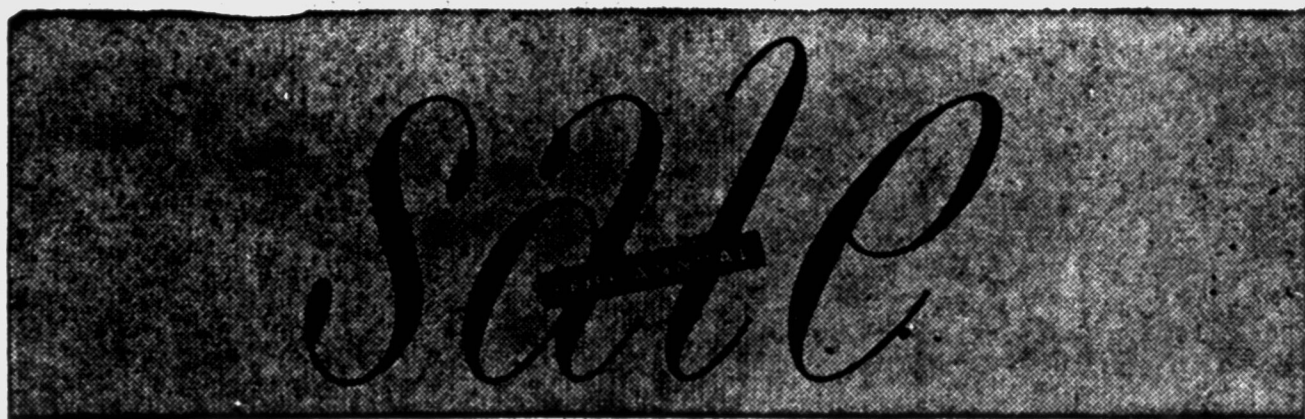

The Fire Chief recommends that serious consideration be given to the offer because the land could be advantageous to the Fire Department. The Board of Selectmen will now wait for a written offer.

Mrs. Jarvis On Committee

Mrs. Seward Jarvis of Arlington is one of those in charge of the nominating committee planning the Annual Business Meeting and Election of Officers of the Wheelock College Club of Belmont, January 22, at 14 Clark street, Belmont.

BY JAMES G. COLBERT

Former Boston Post Political Editor

Back in the spring of 1950 a group of young Republicans waited upon Christian A. Herter, Jr., and urged that he enter the race for the GOP nomination for the Governor.

They told Herter that while he probably would be defeated, he was still the strongest candidate the GOP could put up against the then Governor Paul A. Dwyer and that he might pull the House of Representatives back into the Republican column.

The unusual aspect of the representations made to the younger Herter was that although he was regarded as one of the outstanding political prospects in the Republican party he had not run for public office up to that time, but had been active in his father's campaigns.

Herter was willing to make any sacrifice within his power for the GOP in its time of need, and he gave long and careful consideration to the proposals and requests that he enter the gubernatorial race.

In the end, after consulting some of the top party leaders, Herter decided he could not accomplish anything for his political party by standing for the Governorship and instead sought and achieved election to the State Legislature, starting a bright career of his own.

Two years later a group of Republican leaders waited upon Herter's father, then one of the foremost members of Congress, and persuaded him to give up his seat on Capitol Hill and launch an uphill fight against Paul A. Dwyer—a battle that was to end in a spectacular victory.

Considered Reflection
After the senior Herter's election, the younger Herter found that the father-son situation, with one in the Governorship and the other in the House of Representatives, came pretty close to being unstable.

Whatever the then Representative Herter did or said was considered to reflect the position of his father.

At the end of the 1953 legislative session, Herter resigned from his position in the House and went to Washington, largely because he felt that was the best thing to do from his father's standpoint.

In Washington, where he was able to stand on his own feet and his own ability, he quickly gained respect and prestige in his own right. He served for one year as administrative assistant to the Vice President and for two years as general counsel for the important Foreign Operations Administration.

In 1956, when he learned his father was planning to retire from the Governorship, he came back to Massachusetts and made a spectacular run for the Executive Council. In some sections of his councillor district he polled a bigger vote than did President Eisenhower who was sweeping the State and the nation in his bid for a second term.

Now, approximately eight years after the time that a group of young Republicans sought to draft him as a gubernatorial candidate, Herter has set his sights on the Governorship.

He is striking out for the office his father held for four years because he has been convinced that he would be the strongest contender the Republican party in Massachusetts can match against Governor Furcolo.

Attractive Candidate

There is no question but that Herter would be a very attractive candidate if he gains the right to run as the GOP gubernatorial standard-bearer.

He has the vigor and enthusiasm of youth. He looks younger than he is. He will observe his 40th birthday next week.

He is a liberal Republican who has made an excellent record in the public offices he has held.

He graduated with honors from Harvard College, where he attained membership in Phi Beta Kappa, and was one of the top men in his class at the Harvard Law School.

His war record was outstanding. He was in the thick of the fighting in the European theatre of operations in World War II, was wounded in action and decorated as a private and was discharged a major.

Add to those assets the fact that he has color, is a fine speaker, makes a good appearance on the stump, and has a name that is known across Massachusetts, and you have most of the requisites needed in a candidate for high public office.

All that doesn't necessarily mean that Herter will be the Republican nominee for Governor next November.

He was the first GOP gubernatorial candidate to declare his intentions, and his announcement came as a tremendous surprise in political circles.

But Attorney General George Fingold and former Speaker Chas. Gibbons have been campaigning for months without the formality of any announcement.

It is reasonable to assume that they had some delegates lined up even before Herter decided to make the run for the Governorship and that they have a head start on the Executive Council. Whether he can overtake them and top them at the pre-primary Republican State convention in June is something time alone will tell.

Knock-Down Battle
This year will be the first in more than two decades in which the Republican party in Massachusetts will have a real convention battle for a gubernatorial endorsement.

There was, of course, a knock-down primary for the GOP nomination for Governor back in 1950. But since the convention system was restored in 1952 the selection of the gubernatorial standard-bearer has been decided upon before the delegates even were called to order.

Under Secretary of State Herter was officially unopposed for the nomination in 1952, although some of Sumner G. Whittier's followers insisted on placing his name in nomination and voting for him. Whittier actually was a candidate for Lieutenant Governor at the time.

In 1954 Herter was renominated by acclamation, and Whittier gained the nomination in similar manner in 1956.

This year, however, the convention delegates really will have a major fight to settle.

It is generally assumed that the Republicans will resolve their battles at their June convention and that there will be no conflict carried over into the September primary.

Attorney General Fingold has been nominated three times at party conventions but was never challenged in a subsequent primary, although Republican leaders had to invoke stern party discipline when one unsuccessful convention contender talked of opposing Fingold in the 1952 primary.

Herter and Gibbons are also both the stamp of Republicans who would be likely to abide by the decision of a convention, whether it was for or against them.

Three Combinations
It's possible, of course, that the convention delegates themselves might insist that the candidates stand or fall on the decision of the conclave and reject anyone who refused to do so, but it's improbable any such action would be necessary.

What most Republican leaders will endeavor to do in the coming weeks will be to reach a decision as to whether Herter, Fingold or Gibbons would be the strongest candidate against Governor Furcolo next November.

While it is commonly assumed that Furcolo has lost substantial strength during the year he has been in office, some factors may be militating in his favor when he stands for reelection next autumn.

There are some indications that a Democratic tide may be running throughout the nation as a result of public dissatisfaction administration over the fact that the United States so far, at least, has not kept abreast with Soviet Russia in the race for the control of outer space.

Whether that feeling will still exist nine months from now or whether it would make any impact upon a gubernatorial election, if it does, are questions it is difficult to answer.

One thing which is certain is that Bay State Republicans will want to move into the 1958 election war with the strongest member they can get at the head of their State ticket.

Some GOP leaders predict that Herter, Gibbons and Fingold will all wind up on their State slate. They believe that one of the three following combinations might be picked by the convention:

1. Herter for Governor, Gibbons for Lieutenant Governor and Fingold for Attorney General.

2. Gibbons for Governor, Herter for Lieutenant Governor and Fingold for Attorney General.

3. Fingold for Governor, Gibbons for Lieutenant Governor and Herter for Attorney General.

Whatever may be the case, recent developments have shaped up some interesting decisions for Bay State Republicans.

Seek Better Coasting Areas, Praise Skating Facilities

Arlington youngsters and grown-ups have had another week of fine skating according to reports, thanks to the fine work of the Town's various departments in keeping the several areas utilized for skating in top condition.

According to the Park Department large crowds turned out to take advantage of the fair weather and excellent skating conditions over the weekend. At various times as many as 600 were reported skating at Hills Pond, 800 were said to be skating at Meadow Brook, while the North Union Wading Pool area was crowded with some 300 of the very young accompanied by their parents.

The Town's various departments worked through Saturday night readying the many areas in the Town for Sunday skating.

According to Town Manager Edward C. Monahan, the areas are scraped each day and "fogged" when temperatures fall below 15 degrees above zero.

"Fogging" is the spraying of a fine mist of water over a surface, allowing about a half hour to freeze and then spraying a second time.

The condition of the Town's skating areas was mentioned at the Monday meeting of the Board of Selectmen and the fine job accomplished by the Town in providing these areas was praised.

Meanwhile, at Monday's meeting of the Board of Selectmen, Selectman Joseph Greeley asked if something couldn't be done about providing better coasting facilities for the youngsters of the community.

Greeley stated that many youngsters were forced to coast in streets because of the lack of adequate facilities.

Greeley asked that investigation be made into converting areas in the rear of the Junior high school West and at Menotomy Rocks Park into coasting areas.

Meanwhile, some 300 youngsters did turn out where coasting was available at North Union street and at Robbins Farm.

Objectionable "Lit" Scarce In Arlington

Figures relative to a check on indecent literature in cooperation with store owners in the community just released would indicate that very few books deemed to be indecent are being sold in the Town of Arlington.

A total of 382 stores were checked in the course of the year and only 446 titles were deemed to be indecent.

During the most recent check for which figures are available, the month of December, none of the 29 stores checked had more than five objectionable titles on their magazine racks.

According to the year-end report five stores discontinued selling books during 1952, while two stores started stocking their shelves with publications.

In only three months during the year did more than 45 titles of objectionable nature appear on book shelves, 58 in January, 50 in May, and 59 in June. The best record was attained during the month of April when only 26 titles of objectionable nature appeared on shelves in 34 stores.

Breakdown of the 1952 figures by month, store, and number of titles deemed objectionable each month follows:

UNPROFITABLE PASSENGER LINES "INEXCUSABLE WASTE," McGINNIS

Patrick B. McGinnis, of Boston, president of the Boston and Maine Railroad, has asked Congress to take "a vigorous new look" at the national transportation picture and to remove legislative handicaps which confront the railroads with a whole series of competitive paradoxes.

In a statement before the Surface Transportation Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce here, Mr. McGinnis declared that because of discriminatory regulations — federal, state and local — an decade of the competition of the automobile and other forms of transport, the railroads have seen their share of the gross national product swiftly and steadily decline.

The railroads, he added, "can no longer sustain the huge losses that most of them assume each year. It has become exceedingly difficult to locate financing for the equipment so desperately needed to provide shippers with up-to-date facilities, so that goods can be properly transported to market. It has become similarly difficult to attract new investors."

"In these days of world tensions, it is important that our railroads be given the chance to become strong and healthy. The present conditions under which we operate make this impossible. We need to help ourselves, and we are doing so to the best of our ability. But, in my opinion, the government must now grant us the right to compete."

POINTS OUT PARADOXES The Boston and Maine and other railroads, Mr. McGinnis continued, are up against the following paradoxes which require attention:

Common-carrier railroads cannot compete with private carriage because of the 3 per cent federal excise tax on freight.

They cannot compete with the common carrier trucks by introducing rates related to their own costs, because government regulators hold that to do so would adversely affect the common carrier trucks.

They cannot go into the transportation business by water, by air, or by rubber tire, being legislated out of these other forms of transportation.

They cannot successfully compete in the carriage of agricultural commodities with exempt truckers which are unregulated and no one knows their rates.

They have no way of competing with the "leased-return-load situation" prevalent in proprietary carriage.

They have no way of competing with the waterways because the users do not pay for the use of the waterways, while the railroads pay fully for their own roadways.

They cannot compete with ships, barges and coastal tankers because the bulk commodity exemption allowed water carriers is not available to the railroads.

A more realistic government attitude toward mergers and consolidations would also enable railroads to improve service and eliminate waste, Mr. McGinnis said. He pointed out that truck companies merge every day, but there are still 35 railroads operating east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river.

"If the small railroads serving New England could unite into one strong system, the public, shippers and investors alike would profit," he told the Congressional group.

Turning to needless passenger operations, the railroad president pointed out that the Boston and Maine is seeking permission to abandon certain unprofitable passenger lines in 26 communities which are in competition with a municipally-owned transit system.

Mr. McGinnis described such duplication of service "an inexcusable waste."

Mr. Lawrence J. O'Neill of 31 Kimball road, Arlington, died Jan. 11 in St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He was 74 years old.

Funeral services were held at 9 a.m. in St. Agnes Church Jan. 15. Mr. O'Neill was president of the O'Neill Fuel Company in Somerville. He was a charter member of Cambridge Council, K. C.

Operation Comeback

March of Dimes research has made it possible for thousands of boys and girls and young people who have lived through polio attacks to do more than just survive.

With further help many of these victims of paralysis may find ways to become useful citizens and life for them will again be worth living. That is the picture of hope put forward by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in describing the March of Dimes program known as "Operation Comeback."

Survival is not enough for these polio casualties. Some answers to the problems facing the disabled have been found but many patients have not yet had access to modern rehabilitation. This is the great challenge for the March of Dimes in the immediate future.

Research into better care for patients is spearheaded at 16 respirator and rehabilitation centers across the country which are supported by the National Foundation. Here it has been demonstrated that nine out of ten patients whose lives are dependent on artificial respiration equipment can be released from hospitals to return to fuller lives at home. Latest figures show that centers achieve full or partial "weaning" from respiratory aids in six of ten cases.

Impossible Dream

Twenty years ago this would have been considered an impossible dream. Then, most patients with breathing difficulties died or, if they survived, had to face life in the prison of an iron lung.

March of Dimes research also is moving toward better health for patients long confined to bed. Paralyzed persons often have trouble when calcium settles in the kidneys—a condition brought on by the patient's inactive state.

Several new treatments for kidney stones have been developed at the centers and research on prevention is moving forward. These developments and others can help non-polio patients, too.

Treatment for brittle bones, which interfere with rehabilitation, also has been devised, including the use of male and female hormones.

Other research has brought into being 2500 self-help devices in the last ten years, use of which restores some function to paralyzed hands, arms and legs.

These are devices which enable a girl with paralyzed arms to comb her hair or put on lipstick unassisted. Others allow some children with heavily braced arms to build a house of blocks.

By supporting the March of Dimes you will enable scientists to continue these and other research projects. A contribution to the March of Dimes is a stepping stone to a better life for those disabled by polio and other conditions.

Babson Discusses

1958 Graduates

Exclusive NEWS Feature

Roger W. Babson

The big-paying, easy-to-get first job out of college is something we shall see less of this year. Company recruitment officers are saying that "this year for the first time in a long while we shall find plenty of June graduates around at prices we want to pay."

Babson studies of business activity have for some months now revealed a mild softening in both employment and payrolls. The cause of this slowdown in the cycle can be attributed to a number of things; among these are rising productivity through technological advances, automation, and declines in government spending.

The reason I am writing this article now instead of in the spring is to try to make both young people and their parents aware of this changed condition. If a college education teaches nothing else, it should make individuals aware that survival of the fittest is a law of nature not likely to be repealed in a hurry by any congress, soviet, or college placement officer!

UNEMPLOYED COLLEGE GRADUATES

You may be surprised to know that there are a number of last June's graduates who have not yet been able to find full-time employment of the kind they want. I learned from one large eastern university recently that better than 20 per cent of its last-June graduates had failed to find employment to their liking by Labor Day. Some are still working at part-time jobs; some have gone back to college for graduate work. While this figure may be somewhat a typical, it does, nevertheless, point up a trend.

Did you know, too, that a fair sprinkling of last June's graduates who did get jobs have already been "excessed" by their employer? This word "excess" is a lovely new personnel word which means "you are a nice enough individual; you have done well on the job; we would like to have you around, but we just don't need you any more." In short, he has been fired!

START JOB HUNTING NOW

One well-known college placement officer has stated that he expects the number of campus visits by companies this year to be cut by 50 per cent. I cannot agree with this; but, I do say there will be some shrinkage.

If, therefore, you expect to graduate from school or college this year, and want a job, start hunting now. Include these things in your preparation: (1) Make an appraisal of yourself. Know your vocational interests, strengths, and weaknesses. (2) Find out what kinds of jobs can best use your abilities, education, and experience; working with people, with numbers, or with materials and things? (3) Investigate your college library to find out what companies offer what kinds of jobs. (4) Go to a good financial source book and check specific companies for growth potential and product diversification.

STUDY COMPANIES TO BE VISITED

(5) Have a general knowledge, before you go into the interview, of each company as well as of the industry it represents. (6) Be able to tell a prospective employer in a general way why you are interested in his particular industry and his company. (7) Set up a contact schedule for yourself, and send a resume a day to companies you think you would like to work for, asking for the privilege of an interview. (8) When interview time comes, be able to talk intelligently about yourself, indicating again, in a general way, the kinds of things you think you might be able to do on the job. (9) Send a follow-up letter after the interview.

Sure, this is a lot of work, and it takes a good deal of time! But the person who fails to take minimal steps of this sort is mentally lazy. Time spent now in getting ready for interviews is far better employed than time wasted in interviews from which you will obviously be "washed out" because of your lack of preparation. It is also far better than time spent later on a job for which you have neither the interest nor the aptitudes. Job hunting is serious business, more so this year than at any time since the war.

Community With A Heart

How often have we heard it said, "Gee this is a cold town, or this is the coldest city I have ever seen."

You hear them say, "I've lived in this community for five years or seven years, or ten or fifteen years and I don't even know the name of the family which lives two houses down the street."

Or you may hear someone say, "you know I never even knew Mr. Dow was alive, until I saw the doctor's car in front of the house last week and someone told me Mr. Dow was ill. Why I thought he had been dead these many years."

How often have you heard this type of statement in your town or city?

Recently, a story came to our attention of just such a situation which existed in the Town of Arlington. This story had a happy ending, we are glad to say.

A family which had lived in Arlington for almost a score years, had occasion recently to find that tragedy great or small brings out the heart in a community.

The family owned a dog, an extremely valuable dog. The animal was struck by a car one day last fall. Before the owner could get to the spot where the accident took place, a neighbor she hardly knew, somehow got the animal which was covered with blood into the back seat of her new ranch wagon. Clean blankets were placed over the injured animal and the neighbor took it to an animal hospital in Boston. Another neighbor went to the hospital and remained there while the dog was given blood transfusions.

The animal recovered thanks to the prompt action and assistance of neighbors the family barely knew.

Because of the tragedy, neighbors in the area have come to know one another after having lived in the same vicinity for many years without even knowing each other's names in some cases.

The owners of the dog received calls from many neighbors and even from persons in other sections of Town and one from Stoneham.

It always seems rather unfortunate to us that it takes a near-tragedy to bring persons together, but it certainly serves to prove the point, at least under these circumstances that Arlington is a community with a heart.

From Beacon Hill

BY JAMES G. COLBERT
Former Boston Post Political Editor

Even though there is tight-lipped silence on both sides, there is little doubt but that the breach between Governor Furolo and Democratic State Senate Leader John E. Powers has been widened by the demotion of Representative John T. Tynan of South Boston from a position of prominence and influence in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Powers is an old pro in politics with long experience at masking his inward feelings, and it is highly improbable that there will be any public expression of bitterness or rancor on his part toward the Governor.

But Powers also is staunch in his loyalties to his friends. He takes their blows as his, particularly when he feels they are being made targets because of their allegiance to him, and regardless of what he may say out in the open he doesn't forgive or forget quickly.

Tynan not only is Powers' friend; he comes pretty close to being the political protégé of the Democratic Senate leader.

There may have been some personal differences between Speaker John F. Thompson and Representative Tynan when they served together in the House as Democratic floor leader and whip respectively.

It seems rather plain, however, that Tynan's demotion was aimed more at Powers than at Tynan. It has all the earmarks of an act of political vengeance, and it could prove to be extremely ill-advised, for Powers will be one of the key figures in this session of the Legislature.

Pushed Down

The operation of cutting Tynan down, of dropping him from the position of Democratic whip and ousting him from the powerful House rules committee, was executed with Governor Furolo's consent and possibly on his orders.

Representative Thompson, who has been maneuvered into the Speakership by Furolo at the cost of a court clerkship for former Speaker Michael F. Skerry, would not take any step which would embarrass the Governor; nor would he make any major move without consulting the head of his party.

Whether the idea of humiliating Tynan and shifting him to the inconsequential power and light committee originated with Furolo or with Thompson is a matter of some conjecture on Beacon Hill. One school of thought is that Furolo issued the order and Thompson carried it out. The second theory is that it was Thompson's idea and that he consulted with the Governor and obtained the latter's approval.

No one at the State House believes that the double-barreled rebuke to Tynan and Powers was administered without the wholehearted approval and consent of Governor Furolo. Certainly, Powers and Tynan have been in politics long enough to know that the action had the Governor's assent.

The significance behind the move is that Representative Charles J. Artesani of Brighton is scheduled for judicial appointment. In the normal course of events Tynan would have succeeded Artesani as the Democratic floor leader.

Now Tynan has been pushed down pretty nearly to the foot of the political class, and when Artesani steps out Representative Cornelius F. Kiernan of Lowell will become the Democratic floor leader.

Opposed Sales Tax

It isn't of any consequence to the voters of Massachusetts, except possibly for those of South Boston and Lowell, whether Tynan or Kiernan is the Democratic whip or which of the two serves on the powerful House rules committee.

What is of major importance, however, is that Governor Furolo started his second year in office—an election year—on a note of bitterness within his own political party—bitterness which he himself created.

When Tynan came out publicly against the sales tax last year, he preferred his resignation as Democratic whip to Speaker Skerry since he had taken a stand opposite to that of the head of his party.

Skerry, who also was opposed to the sales tax, declined to accept the resignation and declared in effect that each legislator had a right to make up his own mind on the issue.

Tynan, however, isn't being given the heave-ho because he spoke and voted against the sales tax. At least, it wouldn't seem that was the reason because Kiernan also was against the sales tax, although not as vociferously as Tynan or Powers.

What most observers on Beacon Hill can't understand is why Governor Furolo, who nine months from now probably will be fighting for his political life, isn't undertaking to close the breaches in his own party instead of adding Furolo requested in his annual bitterness to the feuds which already exist.

Representative Tynan will not be able to control much more than his own vote during the legislative session which lies ahead. Powers, however, will be the most influential single member of the State Senate. It will be very interesting to watch his working relationship with Furolo.

The statement made by Powers concerning Governor Furolo's annual message didn't exactly reflect any unrestrained enthusiasm. Said the Senator:

No Overwhelming Applause

"The Governor's annual message contains a frank presentation of the problems of advancement in the various fields of our economy. In the main they pinpoint a Democratic philosophy's approach to the possible solution."

"The Democratic party has advocated the adoption and extension of many of the recommendations in the past and will continue to support this type of legislation in the future."

Any resemblance between that statement and the ones Powers issued a few years ago in commenting on the addresses of former Governor Paul A. Dever is strictly confidential.

If you listened to any of the re-broadcasts of Governor Furolo's annual message, you undoubtedly heard the periodic outbursts of applause. There were about 10 altogether, none of which could be described as overwhelming.

When the legislators took their seats in preparation for the Governor's address, they found copies of the speech he was to give, with notations as to when they were to applaud.

While intrigued by this new touch of showmanship, most of the Republicans and some of the Democrats disregarded the instructions for applauding.

Ignored Vaitses

The demotion of Tynan was just one of several moves made by Thompson shortly after assuming the Speakership.

Former Representative Joseph D. Ward of Fitchburg and Daniel Leary, son of Attorney George J. Leary, influential West End leader, both were dropped from their jobs in the Speaker's office.

Ward's dismissal was understandable. He will shortly be involved in a three-way fight for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General with City Councilor Edward J. McCormack, Jr., of Dorchester and former Governor Peabody of Cambridge.

Leary, however, had been one of the most competent members of former Speaker Skerry's staff, and his ouster came as a distinct surprise.

What also started Beacon Hill observers was that even while Governor Furolo was calling for "bipartisanship" in the deliberations of the State Legislature, Thompson was taking steps which obviously would infuriate and antagonize Republican members of the House.

Two of the outstanding GOP House members—Representative J. Robert Ayers of Weston and Representative Walter F. Hurlbut of Greenfield—were bumped off the important House Ways and Means Committee.

In their places Thompson named a Democrat and a Republican who is considered somewhat friendlier to the Furolo administration than either Ayers or Hurlbut, both of whom, incidentally, were assigned to the inconsequential water supply committee.

Another action by Speaker Thompson which caused a flickering of political eyebrows was the studied manner in which he ignored Republican Representative Theodore J. Vaitses of Melrose when the latter sought recognition in order to speak on the bill to validate the automobile registration plates which were issued while former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King was still on the job.

Vaitses endeavored six times to get the floor. Thompson looked directly at him, apparently saw him but accorded him no recognition. Vaitses consequently was unable to speak.

Republican leaders immediately speculated on whether that was a forerunner to similar tactics Thompson will employ during the coming legislative session.

While Democrats and Republicans have fought hard on the floor of the House chamber in the past, Speakers of both parties have presided over the proceedings in a fair manner. That has come to be a legislative tradition.

Speakers have recognized and given the floor to legislators who have been going to make attacks upon their party, their Governor or even themselves. They obviously did not welcome the prospect of the verbal assault, but they scrupulously respected the right of any legislator to say what he desired to say.

There will be little of the "bipartisanship" which Governor Furolo requested in his annual message if that tradition is disregarded.

Five St. Agnes CYO Teams Entered In League Competition; Season Starts

St. Agnes with five teams entered in CYO League competition opened its season last week. The Seniors, coached by Bill Bonin, who guided St. Agnes to the Diocesan Championship last year, started where they left off by trouncing St. Luke's of Belmont. With most of last years back Bonin hopes to bring St. Agnes its second straight championship in the Senior boys division.

The Intermediates with Tom O'Keefe at the helm have jumped to the top of their division by downing St. Bridget's of Lexington and St. John's of Peabody. Looking very impressive in their 61-20 romp over Lexington were Jim Connors, Tommy O'Keefe and Larry Fritz. Coach O'Keefe faced with a rebuilding job looks like he may have a winner.

The Juniors, coached by Bob Hope, also find themselves in first place as a result of their one point victory over Sacred Heart of Watertown. The 30-29 win was pulled out of the fire in the last second when Warren Pierce converted on a free throw. John Goodwin, Billy Harmon, Larry DiStefano, Gerry Kiernan and Warren Pierce head up a well balanced Junior team.

A scoreless first quarter didn't help the St. Agnes Cadets as they dropped their opener to Sacred Heart of Watertown a 27-20 margin. John Kautis and Dan Keating led the losers with 10 and 6 points respectively.

Bob Kiernan in his first year of coaching has a spirited squad. The boys are looking forward to a fine schedule in their first year in organized CYO basketball.

The Junior Girls' coached this year again by Alysce McMahon had their first game postponed due to inclement weather. The girls' team is of championship caliber and could bring home the division title.

Home game for all St. Agnes CYO teams are played at Fidelity House.

FOOTSAVING EDUCATION

By Herb Mason Orent owner of Mason's Shoes Arlington center. Would ill-fitting shoes affect a child's school work?

Common sense says, "Yes." If a teacher sent a child home with his hands tightly bound and complained that the child paid poor attention to classroom work we would be inclined to say "What do you expect?"

Surveys show that 2 out of 4 children are sent to school wearing shoes that cramp their feet. In one instance a teacher reported that after a child's shoes were refitted, "she is a different person. She joins in the playground games instead of remaining in the room and her attitude toward her school work shows definite improvement."

I have been accused of worrying too much about the wrong end of the pupils but the foolend may not be so far wrong.
